Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure.

California Resources Corporation (CRC) benefits from a diverse, world-class portfolio that provides affordable and reliable energy to the fifth largest economy in the world. CRC has a proven track record of constructively working with California agencies to implement the world's most stringent oil and natural gas regulations.

CRC does not expect yesterday's proposal by the California Department of Conservation to have a significant effect on its production, plans or reserves. CRC is not dependent on any single field, drive mechanism or completion method. The steamfloods CRC operates do not require high-pressure cyclic steam injection as referenced in the proposal. In addition, over the past several years, less than 10% of CRC's wells were completed using well stimulation. Currently, CRC is operating a total of eight rigs drilling wells, none of which require well stimulation.

Recent events from local utility power outages to Middle East turmoil highlight the critical need for California to sustain a diverse, reliable and local energy supply. CRC opposes irresponsible activist proposals that would increase Californians' dependence on energy imported from the Middle East and would delegate the state's environmental stewardship to foreign countries like Saudi Arabia.

California has vast oil, natural gas and renewable resources that can make the state more self-sufficient and secure, and CRC has the workforce and technology to develop those resources safely and responsibly for decades to come.
